

Custom printer and software solutions

MedVantage is a well-established labeling company, specializing in custom printer and software solutions that provide customers with unique labeling options that are technology-driven, user friendly, and cost effective.

With over 30 years in business, our extensive knowledge allows us to provide tailored labeling products and services that offer information accuracy that is less dependent on human involvement and that supports your facilities critical information needs.

With the successful launch of the FreshDate product line, MedVantage continues to provide a revolutionary way to label within foodservice, dramatically improving accuracy and operational efficiency.

Since labeling laws are now requiring full ingredient lists, FreshDate helps create larger food labels that can showcase ingredients and allergen information as well as point-of-sale data such as barcodes, prices, and expiration dates.

Likewise, it can also produce labels that accommodate the new style of nutrition panels required by the FDA. From a retail perspective, custom label designs can be created uniquely for an operation's grab-and-go packaging to include the facility's name, address, and phone information.
